Word Out: Poems Written under the Big Top of Dodge and Stanley Facilities Mr. Lucas Alan Dietsche
Hear out the "Word Out!" With combinations of rhyme, Dada, free Verse, spoken word, expressionism, Proletarian realism, and prose, Dietsche stretches the English language and bends-the-ear to over exaggerate reality to tell the reality of truth. He does it to expose lust, destructive tastes of profit wars, contemporary morals, depression, deprivation, loneliness, frustration, alienation of prison, and the Human from nature and product. Dietsche's "Word Out" is so scathingly provocative and uniquely versed, you would think he's writing in his own language! Think of it as anti-poetry. Really soak his message in to help form a people-friendly, brave, and new un-utopian world, by educating, organizing, agitating.
