Dedication

This book is dedicated to all the hard working people that build things. Whether that be construction workers that build our homes, our factories, and our businesses or our teachers and schools that build our children, we want to acknowledge you for all you do.

Thank you!

Introduction to the Week of Months Series

As I spent time with God each day over a period of months, it transformed my understanding of the reality of God through experience. Being older, God and I go back a ways. While my ability to stay focused has been challenged, God as always has stayed the course of being a loving Father. And there have been numerous miracles. When I started my family lived in a one room efficiency apartment. Today we have a house in the country on three acres we are buying, paying little more than for that apartment! My daughter was deathly allergic to peanuts. Suddenly, that was gone, and now her favorite sandwich is peanut butter and jelly. While this may not sound like much to us adults, it was a big deal to a 10 year old. And the list goes on. Please do not take this wrong and think that somehow by some formula you will be able to get God to move on your behalf. The point is He already is and wants to be, and if we can connect and plug in to what He is doing, then we experience life as God meant it to be, based on an opportunity to walk down that path together. God has a pattern to His creation we can discover in our walk with Him.

Introduction to Daily Devotional: Edification

I recorded a portion of what occurred on my daily devotional journey, and that is the book you are now reading. This book is the third book in the series, "Week of Months", and was written over that period of months by spending time with God each day. Each day had a different theme to it. Having previously written "Daily Devotional: Heart of the Nation" from prayers and visions I had experienced, it occurred to me that others may benefit from having a pattern of daily prayer to follow.

Edification is something that we all seek. We want to be built up in the Lord as believers. The process is just that, a process, and as such it takes time. All too often I get in a hurry and wish God would speed things up, don't you? It makes me smile as I write this because Edification just takes time. Edification is a building process.

The image on the cover of this book reflects that fact that Edification is a building process. Here we see a group of construction workers with tools of the trade. They are surrounded by stones that they will likely be using. All buildings need a sound foundation. We have Jesus (Yeshua) our Messiah as our solid rock to build upon.

Looking at this image I was reminded of various construction jobs I have had over the years. It was hard work, but when the buildings were complete, there was a great feeling of accomplishment that something so wonderful had been built. But none of these jobs were so challenging or important as the building we all called to build today - ourselves and each other. It is my hope that when you see this image, or as you see construction in your area, and you read these words that follow, that you will experience that building process that we all go through, and that you will take time with God to experience one on One with Him, rock solid Edification.

To God be the glory!
