Rethink the Woodshed: New Rules of Practice Pat MacGibbon

"Rethink the Woodshed: New Rules of Practice" has one objective: to make you more productive in the practice room. Think of it as a manifesto of personal practice that will pave the way for a revolution in your life as a musician. The world is full of resources that tell you all about what to practice; the purpose of this book is to change how you practice. By implementing the new rules of practice, you'll learn how to use the already-available resources more effectively, and thereby obtain a better return on your valuable investment of practice time. "In his new book, 'Rethink the Woodshed: New Rules of Practice,' musician/educator Pat MacGibbon has distilled a tremendous amount of vital information into a succinct and approachable book. This is a first-class manual that any musician – or even non-musician – can use to succeed on their own terms..." -Phil Dwyer, C.M. "Pat MacGibbon has lived the learning process, and 'Rethink the Woodshed: New Rules of Practice,' explains it all. For example, he advises, 'Invest in finding strong musical partners whom you can support in the artistic process, and who will support you in return.' This and many other thoughtful insights abound in his book." -Mike Allen, former director of jazz at Western Washington University "I was fortunate to take several private lessons with Pat MacGibbon a couple of years ago while attending the CYMC summer jazz workshop he directed on Vancouver Island. Not only is he a gifted, highly knowledgeable teacher and talented musician, he's also one of the nicest people I've met. He genuinely cares about his students' development, and anyone who gets the opportunity to study with him will greatly benefit. I am honored to recommend him as an instructor. He's the real deal." -Connor Stewart, multi award-winning saxophonist and Fraser MacPherson scholarship recipient
